2. Descripción y objetivos de la materia

The course content is designed to give the student a background to understand the traditions, the values and thus the societies in East and Southeast Asia.

This course has three objectives: First, trying to describe "Asia" as a cohesive body would be all but impossible. I prefer to look at Asia as a "Cultured Space." Why? The diversity and complexity in each country lends itself to making sweeping generalizations about East Asia, the Asia Pacific, or Southeast Asia next to impossible. Second, this class is an attempt to give that geographical region (or "space") the much deserved complexity. So, despite the demarcation by country; in this course we will also explore the social, religious, political, economic, and legal foundations of East and Southeast Asia.

This introductory course uses an interdisciplinary approach to studying modern East and Southeast Asia. The course content is designed to give the student a solid background to understand Asia critically. In some cases we will explore history, in others the arts, in some cases politics, etc. The course is designed to run in parallel - country and themed based - by week. We will use lots of film either as critique or to get a sense of the complexity of Asia.
